THE HARDWARE MEN

Body Found.

An old man named Van Ambers, 73 years old, crippled with rheumatism and without a cent in his pocket, has been missing since Nov. 1st, and no trace whatever could be found of him. The old man was well known around Horn Hill, east of Penhold, where he has resided for some time with his son Dave. He left his son's shack after a few words, on the above date, and was seen walking up the road by a neighbor. The son, who was working on a threshing machine, took no trouble to discover his whereabouts for some time, supposing him to be with some of the neighbors. The settlement was quite worked up over the matter and search parties were out looking for him last week as it was the general opinion he wandered off and perished in the brush.

On Saturday afternoon Geo. Martin, of Penhold, while getting a load of hay from a stack near W. Inglis' farm, found a hat and cane and Mr. Inglis, who happened to be passing thought the cane belonged to the missing man Van Ambers. The son was informed and on Sunday, Geo. Martin, and his son, W. Inglis, W. Speechly and Dave Van Ambers met at the stack and found the body of the missing man in a hole made in the stack. The body was taken to Penhold and Dr. Denovan, coroner, notified. On Monday the body was brought to Stone's Undertaking Parlor, and a jury consisting of W. L. Ouimet, foreman; H. Meeres, C. Smith, Murphy, Welton, & H. Stephenson were sworn and viewed the remains. The sworn statement of Martin, Inglis, Speechly and the son of deceased was taken. There was nothing in the evidence to show that the old man had come to his death other than by natural causes resulting from exposure and a verdict was rendered accordingly.

St. Luke's Church.

Despite the inclement weather on Sunday morning quite a good congregation assembled for the special Thanksgiving service. The hymns were specially selected for the occasion and were as follows:

"Pleasant are Thy Courts above" (No. 240) "Jerusalem the Golden" (No. 228) "Now O Father mindful of Thy love" (No. 325) The words of the Anthem were from Genesis 28th, Chap., and 11th, verse. "He lighted upon a certain place and tarried there all night" etc.

Canon Hinchliffe and Mr. York conducted the earlier portion of the service and the Bishop presided. His Lordship prefaced his sermon by paying a high tribute to the zealous, untiring energy Canon Hinchliffe had displayed on behalf of the Church and they had only to look at the exterior and interior of the edifice they were then worshipping in and which he had the privilege and pleasure to be permitted to dedicate that day to the Worship of Almighty God, to know that Canon Hinchliffe had seen his labor amongst them crowned with success.

The church was again crowded in the evening with a large congregation. The music was of a high order, the anthems, and solos by Messrs. Thompson and Sheratt were well rendered and the sermon delivered by the Bishop was listened to with rapt attention to the end.

Hockey.

The annual general meeting of the Red Deer Hockey Club was held at the Albert Hotel on Saturday evening last. President Hill in the Chair. There were about forty enthusiastic supporters of the club present and the financial report showed the club to be in a splendid shape and financially sound.

The following officers were then elected for the ensuing year: Hon. President, H. H. Gaetz; Hon. Vice-President, Harry Wallace; Patrons, W. E. Payne, J. T. Moore, Ray L. Gaetz, Guy Edgington, H. H. Humber; Pres. R. B. Welliver; Vice-President, R. H. Brown; Sec.-Treas., Jas. Mann; Senior manager, M. Hanna; Intermediate manager, J. G. Rapelli; Executive Committee, President, Vice-President, Sec'y-Treas., and managers of each team.

Some discussion took place with regard to arrangements with rink management for use of rink. Several propositions were offered but finally the question was left with the Executive to deal with. The question of joining the Central Alberta League, was also left to the Executive.

On Monday evening the Executive met and arranged with the rink management to have complete lease of the rink for practices and matches on Monday nights from 9 to 10 o'clock, Wednesday and Friday nights from 7.30 to 10 o'clock and in case of a hockey match coming on a skating night to exchange Friday practice night for that night of match.

It was decided to join the Central Alberta Hockey League and the Secretary was instructed to make all necessary arrangements with that end in view.

CHAPTER IX.

NOT far from the Palais Royal is the sign of The Good Faith, a small establishment, half cafe and half shop, frequented by the people of the neighborhood. It was in one of the rooms of this modest cafe that Prosper the day after his release awaited M. Verduret, who had promised to meet him at 4 o'clock. The clock struck 4. M. Verduret, who was punctually there, appeared. He was more red-faced and self-satisfied, if possible, than the day before. As soon as the servant had left the room to obey his orders he said to Prosper:

"Well, are our commissions executed?"

"Yes, monsieur."

"Have you seen the customer?"

"I gave him your letter, and everything you ordered will be sent to the Archangel tomorrow."

"Very good. You have not lost time. Neither have I. I have good news for you."

"The Good Faith is almost deserted at 4 o'clock. M. Verduret and Prosper could talk at this time without fear of being overheard by gossiping neighbors. Verduret drew forth his memorandum book, the precious diary which the enchanted book in fairy tales, had an answer for every question."

"While awaiting our emissaries whom I appointed to meet here let us devote a little time to M. de Lagors, and let me know what part of France this devoted friend of yours comes from?"

"From St. Remy, which is also Mme. Favre's native town."

"Are you sure?"

"Oh, perfectly so, monsieur. He has not only often told me so, but I have heard him tell it to M. Fauvel, and he would tell Mme. Favre about his mother, who was her cousin and dearly beloved by her."

"Then you think there is no possible mistake about this?"

"No, monsieur."

"Well, things are beginning to look queer."

"And he began to whistle between his teeth, which with M. Verduret was a sign of intense satisfaction."

"What do you mean, monsieur?" inquired Prosper.

"What has just happened, what I have been tracing here, is a lovely town called St. Remy, 6000 inhabitants, charming boulevards on the site of the old fortifications, fine state-house, numerous fountains, large car market, silk factories, famous hospital, and so forth."

"Prosper was on burning coals."

"Please be so good, monsieur."

"It also contains," continued M. Verduret, "a Roman triumphal arch and a Greek mausoleum, but no Lagors. St. Remy is the native town of Euripides, but not that of your friend."

"Nevertheless I have proofs."

"Naturally. But proofs can be fabricated; relatives can be improvised. Your evidence is open to suspicion; mine are authenticated. While you were playing in prison I was preparing my letters and collecting all the attention to open fire. I wrote to St. Remy and received an answer."

"What was it?"

"Have patience," said M. Verduret as he turned over the leaves of his memorandum. "Ah, here is No. 1. Bow respectfully to it; it is official."

He then read:

"Lagors. Very old family, originally from Moulins, settled at St. Remy about a century ago."

"You see," cried Prosper.

"Pray, allow me to finish," said M. Verduret, who proceeded:

"The last of the Lagors, Rene-Louis, bearing without warrant the title of count, married in 1825 Miss. Rosalie Charlotte Fontaine of Tasseville, died December 1st, without male heir, but left two daughters, one of whom is a teacher at Aix, and the other married a small merchant at Orlans. His widow is supported entirely by one of his relatives, the wife of a rich banker in Paris. No person of the name of Lagors lives in the district."

"That is all," said M. Verduret.

"Don't you think it enough?"

"Really, monsieur, I don't know whether I am awake or dreaming."

"Now I wish to remark one thing. Some people may assert that the Widow Lagors had children born after her husband's death, not acknowledged, but bearing the father's name. This objection is destroyed by the age of young Prosper, almost twenty-four, and M. de Lagors has not been dead twenty years."

"But," said Prosper thoughtfully,

"I don't know. I confess it is easier to find out who he is than to know who he is not. There is one man who my master would give information to seek, but he will take good care to keep his mouth shut."

"M. de Clamman?"

"I have always felt the most inexplicable aversion toward him. Ah, if we could only get his record in addition to what you have already told me."

"I have been furnished with a few notes concerning the Clamman family by your father, who knew them well. They are brief, but I extract them."

"What did my father tell you?"

"Nothing favorable, you may be sure. I will read you the synopsis of his information."

"Louis de Clamman was born at the Chateau de Tasseville, near Tasseville, He had an elder brother named Prosper, who was a lawyer in Paris, and it was in his house that he had the misfortune to kill his own son and badly wounded, he was compelled to flee the country. He was later arrested, universally believed, Louis, on the contrary, was a wise and desirable fellow, detested by all who knew him."

"Prosper de Clamman was sent to Paris and in less than two years had squandered not only his own patrimony, but also the share of his elder brother."

"Bullied, harassed by debt, Louis entered the army, but behaved so disgracefully that he was dismissed from the service."

"After leaving the army we lost sight of him. All we know is that he went to England and there to a German gambling report, where he was mixed up in a scandalous affair."

"But he suddenly heard of the return of his brother Gustave to France. Gustave had made a fortune in Mexico, and was now rich and accustomed to a very active life, he purchased a small estate in the country, and he spent the remainder of his life in working it. His death occurred in the arms of his brother Louis, his death occurred in the arms of his brother Louis, his death occurred in the arms of his brother Louis."

"A light began to break in on Prosper."

"Then," he said, "from all this I judge that M. de Clamman was very poor when I met him for the first time at M. Fauvel's."

"Evidently."

"And about that time Lagors arrived from the country?"

"Yes, about a month after M. de Clamman's arrival."

"And about a month after his appearance Madeleine suddenly vanished?"

"Well," exclaimed M. Verduret, "I am glad you are beginning to understand the state of affairs."

"He was interrupted by the entrance of a stranger, who was a tall, thin, spruce looking man, with elegant black whiskers, shining boots with fancy tops, buff breeches and a yellow waistcoat with a red and blue striped. After cautiously looking around the room he walked straight up to the table where M. Verduret sat."

"The stout man eagerly."

"Don't speak of it," answered the servant. "Things are getting warm."

"Prosper rose and left the room at once, upon this superstitious domestic. He thought he recognized his face. He had certainly seen that little red-haired boy, but where and under what circumstances he could not remember. Meanwhile Master Joseph had taken a seat at a table adjoining the one occupied by M. Verduret and, having called for some absinthe, was preparing it by holding the water aloft and slowly dropping it in the glass."

"Speak," said M. Verduret.

"In the first place, I must say that the position of violet and coquettish M. de Clamman is a bit of a puzzle."

"Go on. You can complain tomorrow."

"Very good. Yesterday my master walked out at 9 o'clock of course I followed him. Do you know where he went? The thing was as good as a farce. He went to the Archangel to keep his appointment made by Nina Gipey."

"Well, make haste. They told him she was gone. Then?"

"Then? Ah, he was not at all pleased. I assure you. He hurried back to the hotel where the other M. de Lagors, awaited him. And I have never heard so much swearing! M. Raoul asked him what had happened to put him in such a bad humor. 'Nothing,' replied my master, except that little devil has gone off, and no one knows where she is. She has slipped through our fingers. Then they both appeared to be vexed and angry. 'Don't you know anything about it?' asked Raoul. 'Nothing but what I told you,' replied Clamman. 'But this situation, falling in the ear of a man with any suspicions, would put him on the track of the truth. Then Lagors exclaimed, 'If it is as serious as that, we must get rid of this little serpent. My master shrugged his shoulders and laughed. 'You talk like an idiot. When one is annoyed by a woman of this sort, one must get rid of her, no matter how administratively. This idea seemed to amuse them both very much.'

"I understand," said M. Verduret. "It is an excellent idea. But the misfortune is it is too late to carry it out. The nothing which made Clamman uneasy has already been a great deal too long. Nevertheless I must not let them see my hand."

"With breathless curiosity Prosper listened to this report, over which seemed to throw light upon past events. This Raoul, in whom he had confided so deeply, was nothing more than a second-rate theatrical circus dancer, unnoticed at the time, now required to his mind and made him recover, how he could have been so long deceived.

Master Joseph continued his report.

"Yesterday after dinner my master shaved him, curled his hair and performed him with especial care, after which I drove him to Providence street to call on Mme. Favre."

"What?" exclaimed Prosper. "After the insulting language he used the day of the robbery did he dare go to the house?"

"Yes, monsieur; he not only dared this, but he also stayed there until midnight, to my great discomfort, for I got as wet as a rat with the rain."

"How did he look when he came out?" asked M. Verduret.

"Less pleased than when he went in. After grooming his horses and putting away my carriage I went to see if he wanted anything. I found the door locked, and he swore at me through the keyhole."

"Is that all?" questioned M. Verduret.

"All for yesterday, but this morning my master rose late, still in a bad humor. At noon Raoul arrived, and both furious. They at once began to dispute, and such a row! At one time my master seized the other by the throat and shook him like a reed. I thought he would strangle him. But Raoul drew from his pocket a sharp pointed knife, the sight of which made my master drop him in a hurry."

"But what did he say?"

"Ah, there is the rub," said Joseph pitiously. "They spoke English, so I could not understand them. But I am sure they were disputing about money."

"How do you know?"

"Because I learned at the exposition that the word 'argent' meant money in every language in Europe, and this word they constantly used in their conversation."

M. Verduret sat with knitted brows, taking in an undertone to himself, and Prosper, who was watching him, wondered if he was trying to understand and construct the dispute by mere force of retentive memory.

"When they had done fighting," continued Joseph, "the villains began to talk in French again, but they only spoke of trifles—a fancy ball which is to be given by some banker. When Raoul was leaving, my master said, 'Since this thing is inevitable, and it must take place today, you had better remain at home, at Vesinet, this evening.' Raoul replied, 'Certainly.'"

"After this coming and going the room was gradually filling with men, who called for absinthe or bitters, and youths, who perched themselves upon high stools and drank and sang."

"It is time to go," said M. Verduret to Joseph. "Your master will want you. Besides, here is some one who wishes to speak with me. I will see you tomorrow."

The newcomer was no other than Clamman, more troubled and frightened than ever. He came in, and he took place today, you had better remain at home, at Vesinet, this evening. Raoul replied, 'Certainly.'"

Monarch is a range that will give good service as long as you use it.

No bolted parts to come loose—no stove-patty to fall out of the seams and make "air-leaks."

For this range is made of steel and Malleable Iron, and Malleable Iron is the only material that can be cold riveted to make perfectly tight and solid joints throughout.

The Monarch is the only range which has the Duplex Draft—admitting air at both ends of the Fire-box, and insuring a uniform heat. The oven is entirely surrounded by heat—and this heat can be regulated to just the temperature required.

You can get a quick, hot fire in five minutes, or bank it down in equal time.

Come in and let us show you many other exclusive features of the Monarch, which make it cook better with less fuel than any other range sold to-day.

PUBLIC MEETING

A meeting of ratepayers of Red Deer is called to meet in the Opera House, Thursday evening next at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the affairs of the town. All ratepayers interested in the welfare of Red Deer should make an effort to be present and hear what our town fathers have to say with regard to Municipal matters. Let there be a large attendance.

The Moncton Times opportunity remarks:—

"A great deal of fault has been found in certain quarters with the action of Mr. Foster as a director of the Union Trust Co. in borrowing money as one of another Co. to finance certain western purchases. Of course this sort of thing is done every day. It just transpires that the Bank of Commerce, of which Senator Cox is president, has been advancing large amounts to the Dominion Steel Company, of which the Senator is a leading stockholder and director. And Senator Cox is regarded as a leader in the financial world, the particular pet of the Laurier Government."

LIBRARY VOTING CONTEST

As will be seen by an advertisement on another page of this issue, a novel voting contest has been started in town by Mrs. K. B. Dexter, of Kansas City. She has put up a valuable library of 100 volumes of the world's best authors. Included with these is a handsome quartered oak extension bookcase which is now on exhibition in the window of H. H. Gaetz's drug store. Any lodge, school, church, society, or individual observing the rules and receiving the greatest number of votes will receive the library.

Coupons securing voters can be had from any of the firms named in the advertisement on another page. Every ten cent purchase gives the purchaser a vote. This contest is open to Red Deer and surrounding country. Votes will be placed in the ballot box at Gaetz's drug store, and said box will be opened each week and the progress of the contest announced in this paper. Each 10 cents spent at this office for job work or advertising entitles the purchaser to a vote, and new subscribers will get 100 votes.

The Fire Brigade.

The annual meeting of the Red Deer Fire Brigade was held at the fire hall on Thursday evening last. Nearly all the members were present. After the reading of minutes, H. H. Gaetz, acting Mayor, gave an interesting address on fire department work. Chief McGee thanked the retiring officers and the Brigade for the efficient work performed by them during the past year, after which the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Captain of the chemical engine, E. L. Copp; Capt. of No. 1 hose cart, G. Rothnie; Capt. of No. 2 hose cart, H. Bawtinheimer; branchmen, first, A. Cuthbert; second, J. McDougall; for No. 1 hose cart, first, R. Gee; second, F. Hart for No. 2 hose cart; ladder-men, L. A. Smith and Geo. Hart; No. 1 hydrant man, H. E. Playle; No. 2, J. Cogglin; Sec. Treas., W. J. McLeod. The Captains of the hose carts picked their respective teams as follows: Capt. Rothnie, H. Forrester, R. Thompson, A. Taylor, and G. Bull, Capt. Bawtinheimer, W. J. McLeod, R. Griffith, W. Wilson and Houston.

Correspondence.

To The Editor of The News,
Dear Sir—May I ask for a little space in your valuable paper to ask a few questions concerning the Experimental Farm and the Industrial School.
Is it a fact that the Experimental Farm for Central Alberta is to be at Lacombe?

It is mooted that the Industrial School situated about three miles south west of town is to be closed next year.

Here is a government institution with fine buildings, with an inexhaustible supply of water, surrounded by the richest land in the country, which, to my mind would make an ideal experimental farm.

It may be argued that it lies too far from the track. I find generally speaking, that the best of the land lies off the track, and I think a mile or two with good roads ought to be no detriment.

The question is (if it is true, that the school is to be closed, and the experimental farm is not yet settled,) to consider well what will become of this valuable property. Will it be allowed to remain vacant, or will it be sold by the Dominion Government for next to nothing?

Here I think is food for thought. If there is a least possible chance for getting the Experimental Farm here, I think it is up to the Red Deer people to put in a claim right away.

Thanking you for this space, I am Sir
ONE WHO WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

Out and About.

Now that the Municipal elections are about to be held it would perhaps not be out of place to offer a word or two of reasonable advice to our townsmen who are on the voters list but have not paid their taxes for the current year. It is customary for a large number of people to leave the payment of their taxes until the day of election, in order to be duly qualified to vote. This entails a considerable amount of extra work on the town official without any necessity, and people who do not pay until the last day in addition to obtaining a receipt are obliged to have a certificate made out to the effect, they have paid before being permitted to vote. We understand that this year, those who leave their taxes until the day of election will not be guaranteed a receipt or certificate and in consequence will run the risk of losing their vote. We feel sure the ratepayers will take this hint in the way it is intended and endeavour to pay their taxes before election day and thus save themselves disappointment and the office staff unnecessary trouble.

The Red Deer tradesmen are an energetic and enterprising body of men and that they place perfect confidence in the public is evident by the fact of their displaying goods outside their stores from early morning until night fall. There is no doubt that this custom may attract certain bona fide purchasers, but on the other hand it affords a great temptation to the unscrupulous and it is a wonder we do not hear of more petty thefts being committed in consequence.

The same thing obtains in many other towns where are aware very often the Magistrate before whom the thief (if caught) appears, takes the temptation into consideration and either imposes a nominal fine or allows the prisoner to go free.

One of our subscribers has availed himself of our offer last week, inviting correspondence on local topics and draws our attention to two matters he considers, require the attention of the Council. The first is the necessity for the creation of public urinals on certain of our main thoroughfares and so soon as the sewerage system is complete, we think this is a matter that ought to receive some consideration by the Council.

The other suggestion is that the Council should affix tablets upon the various street corners bearing the name of the street and this would undoubtedly fill a long felt want. The number of streets who continually get off here for business purposes are at a loss to find their whereabouts and for the matter of that, there are heaps of people in town, who could not tell you the name of the street they live on if "Sam Hill" had them. These latter people can tell you fast enough, they live on Lot "so and so" and block "so and so" but this is not very interesting to a stranger, and he might just as well be dumped down in the middle of the prairie.

Christmas Photos

Christmas is the time for giving and receiving gifts, and it will soon be here, so you should be making up your minds as to what your are to give your friends. I should say a nice photo of your self or family is the most appropriate gift you could give or send, as a photo brings back old memories, and your friends are more than grateful for such a remembrance, as one never tires of looking over the album with their guests and friends, and would not miss the time spent thus. Now, in sending a picture, it insures you of one in return, which will bring you a two-fold pleasure. You will do well to call at the studio in good time.

The shingles we sell will last for years. Some people stain them for effect's sake—none need to as an increase of their wearing quality. First place, they're cut from good, sound timber; second, they're cut right; third, their drying and storing approaches perfection. Naturally, they're not sold at second-grade prices. But they are worth the money we ask. This way for sound shingles.

A fire on Sunday morning, about one o'clock, destroyed the barn belonging to J. A. Caracul, of the News. The fire is supposed to have originated from an ash heap near the building connecting with an old manure pile and finally reaching the stable. The chemical engine turned out promptly but the fire was too far advanced for it to be of use. J. E. Bower's stable had a narrow escape.

BANK INSPECTION.

To the Editor of the News,

Dear Sir:—In your editorial of Nov. 20th, you say:

"All Canadian Banks have 'Inspectors or Auditors of their own, but there is only one Canadian Bank that is subject to an independent audit. That is the Bank of British North America.'"

"Every year chartered accountants appointed by the shareholders, not by the directors, conduct an independent audit of the institution's books." I beg to point out that the bank mentioned is not a Canadian Bank, but an English institution operating in Canada under a British Charter and the independent audit of the institution's books to which you refer is conducted, as far as my knowledge goes, as follows:—The regular Bank Inspectors inspect the branch offices and furnish their reports to the Head Office, London, and upon these and the Head Office books the auditors report upon the Bank's standing to the shareholders. These independent auditors do not visit the Bank's branches, but conduct their audit in London, England. By referring to the Bank Act (Section 6) you will observe that certain sections only apply to the Bank of British North America.

I write the foregoing, lest any of your readers might get a wrong impression through reading the editorial referred to.

Yours truly,
D. M. SANSON, Manager, The Canadian Bank of Commerce Red Deer.

By reference to our article it will be seen that we referred to the Canadian Bankers Magazine as advocating an independent audit. Mr. Sanson is quite correct in pointing out that the Bank of British North America has an independent audit because it is working under a British Charter. What we take it, the Canadian Bankers Magazine and the Eastern press are kicking about is that the same privileges do not seem to be extended to Canadian banking institutions under the Bank Act, as is accorded English institutions doing business in Canada.—(Ed.)

FRIDAY'S MUSICAL TREAT.

The Palmator Sisters' Concert on St. Andrew's Night, Friday next promises to be an event of pleasure. These artists are well known to the Red Deer public and little remains to be said concerning the high class entertainment that is always presented. Indeed it would be a task to find a like organization with like ability any where. From the very beginning to the close any lover of music will pronounce the program to be of such a type as to elicit nothing but entire satisfaction, and to make every minute of the event pleasing to the degree.

The Presbyterian choir solicits a wide patronage and in doing so they are confident that their many friends will be amply repaid for the support they so many extend. Seats are now on sale at Messrs. Grieve & Berry's Drug Store, where your choice should be made early.

Reward.

Lost last Friday afternoon, two milch cows, one of them in an Hereford, white face, horns turning in, one almost through her ear, roan color. The other is a dark roan, large horns, with a dark stripe around the body. Both being in calf. A reward will be given for information leading to recovery of these animals by the undersigned, three miles south west of Red Deer, near Waskasoo school house. J. C. BRAZIER.

Stray Calf.

Came to my place about 1st. of Oct., a stray steer calf, light red, no marks whatever. Owner can have same by proving property and paying expenses. H. DARRAGH, Penhold.

S. E. McKEE

To the Ratepayers.

Town of Red Deer: Having decided to present myself as a candidate for the office of Mayor at the forthcoming Municipal Elections I take this opportunity of announcing the fact. Should I be elected to this honorable position I shall consider it my duty to give the personal attention to every detail of the Administration which I believe to be the duty of its Chief Officer, and to be necessary from the standpoint of efficiency and economy.

I shall favor a policy of progression without extravagance; of economy without parsimony. It will be my endeavor to safeguard every interest of the town and do justice to every individual, showing neither favor nor malice. I believe it possible to so modify our methods of assessment and taxation that the burden will be more equitably distributed, and to extend our public improvements and utilities without materially rising the general rate.

My aim will be, in so far as I am able, to maintain and improve the position of Red Deer as the healthiest, cleanest, most orderly and attractive town in Central Alberta, and make it altogether a good place to live in. If you think that my influence in these directions will count I shall appreciate your support.

SLEIGHS.

We are selling this year as usual the old reliable, and ever famous Bain sleighs, now to the old residents of this district we need not say anything about these goods for you knew them of old, but to the new comers we have never bought sleighs in this country, we would just say two things, first, make enquiries of the men who have used sleighs in this district, and second, come in and see the Bain before you buy elsewhere.

We are carrying a large stock this winter in all sizes and styles. We have the best shoehorn, the spring steel shoehorn, and we are the only people selling the soft centre steel shoe.

FANNING MILLS.

Now is the time to buy fanning mills. An investment in a fanning mill is one of the best a farmer can make and we can give you terms on the Chatham Mill, whereby it will pay for itself.

QUALITY IS THE FIRST CONSIDERATION IN BUYING A WATCH.

When a man gets a watch he wants a good one, and one that will last a lifetime and always be on the dot. The complexity of modern civilization makes it often a matter of money and sometimes of life and death, that people should be on time.

REGINA WATCHES

Are designed to meet the demand for accurate and durable time pieces—and they do. No detail of their construction has been left open to criticism—in fact they are made a little better than seems necessary. But merit will win in the long run, and Regina Watches, being universally guaranteed, will stand the test of time. Come in and let us tell you more about them.

Arrived Just in Time!

Our carload of cutters are now on exhibition. As they are selling fast, we would advise all intending purchasers to procure theirs while the large assortment lasts. No two alike. A finer line of cutters has never before been offered to the public. The excellent finish even surprised ourselves. We guarantee them to be well painted, varnished and upholstered. With this heavy fall of snow, you are assured of good sleighing for four months, at least; so why not buy now and enjoy the full season?

SLEIGHS.

We have a very complete line of Adams, Chatham and Petrolia make. It will pay you to inspect our large stock and secure our very reasonable prices before buying elsewhere.

FANNING MILLS.

We have a limited number of the celebrated Gearless Mill. This fanning mill was recommended to the farmers by the Government officials who accompanied the seed special here this past spring. They claim that this mill is used exclusively on all Experimental Farms throughout the Dominion.

Now is the season of the year that you require that 2000 lb. truck scale. We allow you two years time, so as to make this invaluable article pay for itself.
